Some Respects in Which the Belles of Helena May Do Penance for Forty Days.

Dancing Clubs and Literary Coteries Which Have Helped Make the Winter Enjoyable.

The Encore Club's Plans for the Ante-Lenten Performance of "Erminie"--Personal Mention

Let the past be the mirror in which may be seen What our lives ought to be, not what they have

The shadow of Lent is upon us, and the fair debutante, fresh from the ball room and field of conquest, becomes for the nonce at least a fair penitent, who puts her ball dresses reluctantly away and endeavors to discipline her mind and assauge her conscience by denying herself the theatre and perhaps candied refreshments

Rev. Mr. Rainsford, of New York, known as the shoulder-hitting parson, by reason of the emphatic way in which he called a spade a spade, and who expected some radical changes in the very ordinary method of observing Lent among his rather ultrafashionable congregation, when asked by a reigning belle, "What ought I to give up?" somewhat tersely replied, "Your looking-glass and your present life," and was rewarded by the retort: "But, Mr. Rainsford, you are already married." It is reported, nevertheless, that she returned all the candy sent her, and eschewed the theatre as a compromise. Here, however, theatrical performances are few and far between, and the average candy of too dablous quality to make the sacrifice sufficiently severe. Nevertheless Lent should be observed, and whatever restrictions the fair daughters of Helena may see fit to place upon their amusements, there is at least one deleterious habit which might be abolished from the family circle without any reference to the Lenten season, namely, the use of gum in any form save perhaps as up?" somewhat tersely replied, "Your use of gum in any form save perhaps as an adhesive compound to render postage stamps and envelopes the more secure in transmission. Surely if it be unanimously allowed that no refued gentleman should chew tobacco, it may be safely inferred that no lady would chew gum; for after all it is merely a distinction without a differ-

THE SEASON'S DIVERSIONS. In reviewing the entertainments which have helped to while away the long winter evenings, the Assembly and Pioneer clubs have afforded the devotee of Terpsichore some excellent amusement in a very select way, and the Encore club has contributed some excellent amusement in a very select way, and the Encore club has contributed several pleasant musical evenings; but some sort of an assembly room is sadly needed in Helena, the present accommodations for dancing being hardly in keeping with the character of the entertainments provided. Beside these club gatherings a few select parties devoted to progressive euchre and retrogressive scandal, together with one or two musicals, have barely relieved what has been generally speaking, a somewhat dull season.

The introduction of afternoon tea on certain days "at home." when tea, cake, and social "on dit" are served up in a very appetizing manner, is a custom which can be very well enlarged upon, and from an economical point of view affords an excellent medium for entertaining your friends and ascertaining who your enemies may be. Another step in the right direction is the inauguration of a literary society, the members of which meet once every month at the home of one or other of the members and read something which must be entirely original. With regard to the originality of these efforts, it may be safely affirmed they are guileless of printer's ink, but in almost every instance gave eminent satisfaction to the reader, while they afforded considerable amusement to those who had aircady "snoken their piece." but in almost every instance gave eminent satisfaction to the reader, while they afforded considerable amusement to those who had already "spoken their piece." But this idea, which was conceived by a learned M. D. while present through force of circumstances at a ladies' sewing bee, where reading was a part of the entertainment, is likely to bear fruit by encouraging the literary propensities of a few ladies and gen 1 n en whose writings have at various times appeared to advantage in some of the leading magazines. The club at present consists of Mrs. H. B. Kane, Mrs. Smeeds. Mrs. B. H. Greene, Mrs. Roberts Hill, Misses Dabrey, Kane, Greene and Dr. Leiser, Gen. Greene and Messrs. Hill, McRae, Dabney, Musser. The next meeting of the club will take place at Gen. Greene's house on March 4, and already the members bear that careworn look which original meditation induces.

THE ENCORE CLUB'S PLANS. The production of "Erminie" by the Encore club after Easter is probably looked forward to with as much pleasant anticipation as anything on the social horizon, the success of the "Sorcerer," given last year by this club, being sufficient guarantee of at least a satisfactory performance. year by this club, being sufficient guarantee of at least a satisfactory performance. And while "Erminie" is in every sense a very much more serious undertaking, there is latent dramatic talent enough in Helena to make the opera a go, while musically the rendering should be at least a harmonious one. The 'cast will contain such names as Mrs. Dr. Hersey, Miss Atkinson, and Messrs. Wallace, Thornburg and Metten, and the last two gentlemen are spoken of as being the probable representatives of the two thieves. As everything in the opera depends upon these two characters, the two thieves. As everything in the opera depends upon these two characters, Messrs. Thornburg and Metten have their work cut out for them, and a very close association with some of the light fingered fraternity during Lent will be essential before committing their lines; for even if they are found out, as the author says, "'Twill be their first offense."

Friday night's assembly, being the last dance before Lent, was largely attended Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Will Humbert, Mr. and Mrs. Hervey Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. John Clayberg, Mrs. Joseph Davis, Mrs. Harry Child, of Great Falls, the Misses Annie and Eudora Flowerree, Louise and Ella Blaine. evening, the occasion being her birthday The self-invited guests brought many tok-ens of kindly regard for Mrs. Wilcox, in the way of pictures, bric-a-brac, and sliver ware. The festivities began early and con-

This all absorbing question need not be asked in Helena, for already two marriages are on the tapls, the Flowerree-Kinna wedding, above mentioned, and the betrothal of Miss Childs to the ever-popular Judge Bache, lately announced. Marriage may be a failure, and in some instances doubtless is, but it takes exceptions to prove the rule, and we can readily believe that the woman who started the question resembled in mind, at least, the fox which Mr. Æsop has made famous. In fact you might answer her query in all seriousness by asking her, "Is spinsterhood a success?" It is only when the eyes are worn with weeping and the teeth are flecked with gold that such thoughts permeate the brain, sour the disposition, and make the sale of hair tonics a success.

DRESS REFORM. IS MARRIAGE A FAILURE.

DRESS REFORM.

The subject of dress reform in gentleman's evening apparel has struck New York city with some force, and is striking terror into the quavering hearts and quivering shanks of the effeminate and not always immaculate male portion of McAllister's four hundred. It is only one man in five who can boast of suitable calves for the display of knee breeches and black silk hose, and when you reduce the maximum of four hundred down to two hundred men and divide by five you are left with just forty eligible pairs of legs to make the new style fashionable in the presence of the charmed circle, while the remainder, presumably, will be consigned to the supper room or compelled to wear kits. But while in Helena it is hardly necessary as yet to plunge into the dissipation of evening dress as worn by our forefathers, yet at the same time the wearing of the ordinary "every evening dress suit" when making calls is a good one. A man is 'then perfectly safe, and while he may at present find himself an exception to the general rule yet it will not be many years before the present rule will be the exception. DRESS REFORM. prescut find himself an exception to the general rule yet it will not be many years before the present rule will be the excep-tion. For whether you are in New York, Helena or Kalamazoo, you are simply ob-serving one of the ordinary rules of modern society, and in any case paying a compli-ment to your hostess she is not likely to re-sent.

And now that a man can wear a slik hat on the streets of Helena without being fired upon or regarded as a lunatic or escaped dude, there is no reason why dress suits cannot be gradually forced upon an unsuspecting public until they begin to realize that the innovation is not dangerous to public morals, and does not necessarily proclaim the wearer to be on a par with the animal Balaam preferred to ride.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL. Spruille Braden, who presides over the destinies of the gold and silver bullion at the United Stat s assay office, is to assume the duties of assistant stage manager in the forthcoming production of "Erminie." Mr. Braden may not be up in stage business, but he knows a good note when it is produced, "treasury or otherwise," and can detect a faise bar the very moment it is presented. As a disciplinarian he could not be improved upon.

Edward F. Crosby left for the east again Thursday last to join his wife on Staten Island, N. Y., whence they proceed to Florida. While here Mr. Crosby talked real estate, and the simplicity of turning thousands in an offhand manner which completely turned his hearer's heads.

Mrs. George Wickes entertained a few friends on Monday evening, inviting them to meet Mrs. Place and Miss Bogart from Bozeman, who are her guests at present. Mrs. Edward F. Crosby writes that she is having a lively time visiting the numerous members of the Crosby family, and expects to return home about April.

Mrs. S. J. Jones gives a lunch party to Miss Bogart and Mrs. Piace, of Bozeman, on Tuesday next. Mrs. Geo. T. Wickes gives a lunch on Thursday. Mrs. Col. Sanders gives a tea party on Friday. There is some talk of starting a rival tennis club on the east side.

E. W. Knight at d family, including Miss Stella Knight, arrived home last night. Mrs. E. W. Bach will return from the

was accomplished by the Equitable during the past year.

This large business shows that the value of life insurance is becoming more thorougly appreciated by all classes, and that in making provisions for dependent ones, men naturally seek for such protection in a company which offers the greatest possible security. The outstanding assurance of the Equitable is stated to be $550,000,000; its income is nearly $27,000,000, and its sur-of the Equitable is stated to be $550,000,000; its income is nearly $27,000,000, and its surplus $20,794,715. This, together with its liberal policy contract and the prompt payment of its obligations, probably draws thousands to the Equitable, and makes its business great.

In stripping life insurance of the rubbish under which it was buried for so many years, the founder and promoters of the Equitable "builded better than he knew." They can now look with supreme satisfaction upon the result of their labors in the establishment of a business which, in its magnitude, appears to be unapproached in any part of the world.

AN INAUGURAL DRESS.

Description of the Costume to be Worn by Mrs. Harrison New York World: A young woman who an intimate friend of Mrs. Harrison says she knows what that lady will wear at the inauguration ball, that she went with her to the dressmaker, saw the material selected, the style of making chosen, and was afterwards present when the dress was tried on. So she is competent to say decidedly how Mrs. Harrison will settle the question of high or low corsage. The dress was not made in New York, though it was during her shopping tour in this city that the president's wife purchased the gloves, slippers and fan that will be worn with it. The material is very expensive and splendid black silk veivet, and the dress is to be made with a very long train. The petticoat is of black satin, draped with very beautiful Brussels lace, gathered quite full and draped a little across the front. The bodice and train are of velvet, and the latter is cut low, but still at a very modest line. The back is slightly pointed, but the front is shaped square, and there are folds of the black lace about it, with a bit of white lisse lying next to the skin. Mrs. Harrison has still a very nice throat and pair of shoulders. Around her throat will be a broad black velvet band clasped with a diamond star, and a necklace hangs below this. Her sleeves will reach just to the elbow, finished with the lace and lisse. Drawn up to meet these will be a pair of tan Suede gloves, fifteen button in length. The slippers are of black satin, beaded with jet upon the toes, and the fan is of black ostrich feathers, with sticks of shell. Mrs. Harrison's thick, handsome gray hair will be worn high in puffs, with a few crimps upon the forehead and a little aigrette or black and white heron plumes set amid the puffs. So she is safe to look a very handsome and imposing figure. Some one who knows the two families says that "Mrs. Morton will be the social figure of the administration. She is not only handsome and high bred, but clever and externelly tactful as well. She will bring out her eldest daughter in Washington next winter, and she will also make a noted event of it. Heretofore the vice-presidents have counted for little in Washington life, but wait and see how Mrs. Morton will change all that." it was during her shopping tour in this city that the president's wife purchased the

On to Washington.

During the "late unpleasantness" thenotto was "On to Richmond!" Now the cry is, "On to Washington" to witness the inauguration of Gen. Harrison on the 4th of March. The display on that occasion will surpass in magnificence any previous inauguration. To the people of the north-west, "The Burlington" offers a rate of one fare for the round trip, from all stations. The elegant equipment, superb track, and fast time of "The Burlington," with its ability to take care of great excursion par-ties, make it the popular line for this oc-casion, and it has already been selected by the Minneapolis Flambeau club and their friends for the Washington journey. Tick-ets will be on sale at all stations from Feb. 27 to March 2, inclusive, good to leave Washington on the return trip up to the evening of March 8. HOME TESTIMONY

HELENA, Oct. 7, 1887.

I was suffering from an unusually bad cough, my lungs were sore and congested, and I consulted one of the best physicians in Helena, whose prescriptions failed to relieve me. I became alarmed, and at the suggestion of a friend purchased a bottle of Acker's English Remedy for coughs, and after taking it according to directions was completely cured. I therefore cheerfully recommend it.
